

App manager vacancy

The Studar team needs an app manager! We are looking for a creative student who can be the manager of our platform! As app manager, you will be mainly responsible for creating the content featured in the Studar app. You'll be adding new hotspots, events happening in town, information about The Hague and its student-life, blogs and much more to the app. Next to that, you'll be part of the board of Studar and be able to make key decisions in the app's progress and further development.

As app manager, you get to be in charge of the creative direction of the app's content and what gets featured on it. Content you produce will be shown to all the users of our app. The function also has a technical side to it, as you will monitor the amount of downloads and interactions on the app itself to determine which parts of the app are good, and which parts need to change.

In this function you can develop your creative and product managing skills and you will be guided by a team of professionals coming from The Hague's municipality and the city's universities. Being the app manager will greatly help you improve your professional experience and you will get to work in a fun team of fellow-students with one goal in mind; to improve The Hague's student life.

Please note that there is the possibility of receiving a "bestuursbeurs" (bursary-salary) for this position.

We're looking for a candidate with the following assets:

- Must be fluent in Dutch and English;
- Good writing and language skills;
- Flexibility and availability for 12-16 hours per week;
- Responsibility;
- Affinity with The Hague's student life.
